Committee Protests To I. C. C. Against Sale Of The Railroad

Brief Submitted By The Representatives Of Stockholders

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The fight over the reorganization of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, which was sold this week under foreclosure proceedings to a bond holder's reorganization committee, representing the Atlanta, Birmingham and Coast, a new company, jockeyed up again before the interstate commerce commission today with the filing of a protest brief by the stockholders' protesting committee.

The brief submitted by W. A. Gunter, chairman of the committee, and Charles E. Cottrill, attorney asserted that if the commission would stand firmly against the "attempted sacrifice of the A. B. and A. and promptly announce its conclusions" the stockholders would then put the road on its feet.

"To finance the unfunded and partly unmatured debts," the brief added, would present no very difficult undertaking when net earnings running at the rate of $500,000 a year.

"If the bondholders," it continued, "would then co-operate and put their shoulders to the wheel (as an energetic group of stockholders is now attempting to do) the aid of this commission may confidently be looked to as the ultimate purpose of putting this road on an efficiently self-sustaining basis at least to assure that neither the Coast Line, nor any other system of such strength or power will be able to batter and hammer it into a pulp and then attempt to buy it in for a song."

REV. EDWARDS TO TALK AT TRINITY

Neville To Conduct The Welcoming Program at That City

Rev. Noble R. Edwards, pastor of First Christian church and member of the Albany-Decatur Kiwanis club, will deliver the principal address at the Trinity gathering arranged by the Farm Relations committee of the Kiwanis club tonight. Rayburne Neville will conduct the program of welcome offered by citizens of Trinity.

A slight change in the meeting hour tonight at the Y. M. C. A. has been made, the club gathering at 6 o'clock and departing for Trinity near 6:45. The latter meeting will be held at the Trinity school building about seven o'clock.

Entertainment program has not yet been announced.

Freight Receipts Better This Year

Freight receipts here continued to gain during May over the corresponding month of a year ago, local officials reported. They attributed the gain, in some degree, to the fact that the number of commodities shipped from here is increasing as the industrial and agricultural lines become more diversified.

Football Idol Killed

"Chigger" Browne, 22, football idol of West Texas and star of the Big Dam Lobos famed football team of Cisco Texas high school, was blown to pieces when 600 quarts of nitro glycerine in a truck he was driving exploded near the village of Crystal Falls in Stephens County, Texas. The force of the explosion blew Browne's body into atoms, only shattered fragments of bone, none of which were longer than two inches, being picked up following the explosion. Broken bits of his body were found 300 yards from the scene of the explosion. Browne graduated from Cisco High school one year ago and was attracted to the post of nitro truck driver by high wages offered. He was working during the summer in order to save money to enable him to go to college and complete his education.

HARTSELLE DROPS FIRST TO H'VILLE

Many old Faces Appear In Lineups Of Both Ball Clubs

Hartselle dropped the first of the three-game series with Huntsville yesterday afternoon 8-4, in a slow game. "Dutch" Mitweide hit a home run and a double for the afternoon hitting honors. A doubleheader is being played this afternoon, "Cotton" Riddle hurling one of the tilts for Hartselle.

With only a small crowd in the stands at the high school grounds, Hartselle dropped back of Huntsville from the start. Mitweide's clouting accounted for three of the four Hartselle runs. "Dutch" was thrown out in trying to stretch a line drive for three sacks. The blow brought across two runs.

Fritz Barnes, old Y. M. C. A. star and last year with Merrimack Mills team, caught a snappy game for the visiting aggregation. Bob Banks, local boy, played the short field for Hartselle. A good crowd is expected for the tilt this afternoon.

(Associated Press)

STARKVILLE, Miss. June 24.—One well known Alabama woman is dead and one injured seriously, following an accident ten miles from here on the Jackson highway early today.

Mrs. Basis E. Kinney, wife of the vice president of the W. P. Brown Son's lumber company, of Fayette Ala. was killed instantly.

Mrs. S. Lovell Yerkes of Birmingham, wife of a widely known coal operator, is injured seriously. Her husband was speeding from Montgomery to Starkville by airplane several hours after news of the accident had been relayed to him from Birmingham.

Speeding to Artesia, Miss., to catch a train, the chauffeur lost control of the machine on the river bridge, plunged through the rail and the car crashed upside down on the bank of the river.

Pinned beneath the machine, they were rescued sometime later by passing motorists. Mrs. Kinney was dead. The chauffeur had both arms broken.

Political Activity Admitted By Chief

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Under encircling fire of fast flying questions Peter Paul Walsh, superintendent of police of Pittsburgh conceded before the senate campaign funds committee today that he had personally asked members of the police force to support the Pepper-Fisher ticket in the Pennsylvania republican primary, and had written a letter to the detective bureau, saying that employees should be "instructed" that a large majority for the ticket was expected in their respective districts.

But in the face of charges that he had violated the law and accusations of failure to testify frankly, the police official insisted that he had taken no "active" part in the campaign and had made no effort to "line up the force." The witness also said he had heard complaint that liquor was being sold at Pittsburgh clubs around primary time.

STOP SIGNALS AT BUSIER CORNERS

Decatur Tries Out New Devices To Aid In Traffic Problem

The stop signals authorized several weeks ago by the Decatur city council, have been installed at a number of the busier street intersections in the municipality and were being observed fairly well by motorists today.

The signals were purchased as an experiment in an effort to help solve the increasingly difficult traffic problem.

If the experiment is successful, it is likely that additional signals will be bought as needed and installed at other corners.

The signals, which are set in the paving, warn drivers of vehicles approaching from one street to bring their vehicles to a full stop before entering the intersecting street. The signals indirectly establish the right of way on certain streets.

Decatur officials announced today that enforcement of the code covering the stop signals would begin Friday. Drivers of cars were urged to co-operate fully with the officials in enforcement of the new system, which was adopted only as a means of giving further protection to drivers.

M'REE EXPLAINS CAMPAIGN STATUS

Says Board Urged That Fund Be Raised To Fight Mosquito

Dr. H. C. McRee, Morgan County health officer, today explained the status of the fight against malaria by eliminating the mosquito.

Dr. McRee stated that the Morgan County board of health, last April, issued a public statement urging that the county, cities and general public contribute funds to make such a campaign possible. Nothing ever came of the suggestion, however.

Dr. McRee stated that he did not believe a campaign started this late in the year would be nearly so effective as were the two campaigns in the two preceding years. He hoped, however, that the citizens of Morgan County would see to it that funds are available early next year that a full and complete drive might be waged to eliminate all mosquito breeding places here.

MANCHESTER, England, June 24.—Inside the grey walls of Stangeway jail, a woman, the mother of three children, one of them a baby, was hanged this morning.

Mrs. Louise Calvert, 33, was executed for strangling her landlady, Mrs. Lilly Waterhouse and then robbing her. To the end the condemned woman asserted that she was innocent.

Thousands of persons had petitioned the home secretary, Sir William Joyson-Hicks for clemency. Sir William said he found no grounds which would justify him in advising the king to interfere with the due course of the law. Among those most energetic in circulating the petitions was Mrs. Calvert's husband from whom she was separated at the time of the murder. Mrs. Calvert was taken into custody April 2 and the sentence of death was imposed May 7. Prior to being sentenced she appealed for a stay of execution on the ground that she soon again was to become a mother. The jury of women was impaneled to investigate her claim. The medical evidence did not support it.

The last execution of a woman in England was in 1923.

Clemmons Is Held On Murder Charge

Pat Clemmons, who was taken into custody, following the injury of Carter Stanford, has been served with a warrant charging murder, as a result of the death of Stanford, Sheriff's officials reported today. Clemmons is in the Morgan County jail and no information was given whether or not there would be an immediate preliminary hearing.

Stanford was said to have been struck in the head with a brick or rock and lingered several days at a hospital before succumbing.

BODY OF INFANT IS FOUND IN A TRUNK

Child Had Been Dead Six Months, Is Verdict Of Coroner

(Associated Press)

TALLASSEE, Ala., June 24.—Officials of Tallapoosa county today were searching for the person, who about six months ago placed an infant, either dead or alive in a trunk in the community hospital of East Tallahassee. The body was discovered Tuesday night by Mrs. E. E. Taylor, a nurse at the institution, who immediately notified physicians of the find.

A coroner's jury was impaneled yesterday and returned a verdict that the cause for placing the infant in the trunk, or the persons who placed it there, was unknown. The body was ordered buried. Physicians testified that the body was that of a well developed girl infant. The trunk was locked and tightly closed. Mystery surrounds the identity of the trunk. Officials stated they had several clues and advanced the theory that the trunk was left there by a former patient.

WILKINSON INSISTS WOMAN WHO CUT THROAT ONE IN CAR

Prosecutor Continues Attack On Testimony On Simmons' Girl

CHARGE EXPECTED TO BE LENGTHY

Jury May Get Famous Case During Late Afternoon

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 24.—Declaring that the supremacy of the law had been challenged in the slaying of John Jones, state law enforcement officer, Horace Wilkinson, special prosecutor in the trial of Byron Shirley, today admonished the jury "to mete out a just punishment to the defendant."

The extreme penalty was not asked in the argument by Mr. Wilkinson. For an hour and 50 minutes Wilkinson analyzed in calm and deliberate voice the testimony presented by state and defense.

He dwelt upon points which he asserted "showed unmistakably" that Jones was "deliberately murdered and not slain in self defense."

Wilkinson was followed after a brief recess by Ben F. Ray, member of defense counsel, who spoke for two hours. Mr. Ray was followed by Roderick Baddow, chief counsel for Shirley, and the final argument was delivered by Solicitor Jim Davis.

The charge of Judge John P. McCoy was expected to be lengthy and it was considered likely that the jury would not retire to begin its deliberations before late in the day. Shirley a deputy sheriff, listened to the arguments without a show of emotion.

The trial, starting June 14, was marked by many surprises and sensations. Dewey Barrett, another deputy, who was indicted jointly with Shirley will be tried in the early fall authorities announced.

Mr. Wilkinson characterized Miss Mary Simmons, companion of Shirley and Barrett, the night they killed Jones and star witness for the defense as "notoriety seeker." He said that "the undisputed evidence shows that the woman in the car with Shirley was the one who cut her throat and not Miss Simmons." He said that the woman who he did not name, cut her throat on the morning she had been served with a court order, issued by Judge McCoy to appear to testify.

It was made a part of the record yesterday that Mrs. Clarence Pearson, the woman who cut her throat, had been served official summons to appear. Mr. Wilkinson declared that "someone felt obligated to protect the married woman and in doing this Mary Simmons was substituted, but the smoke screen was penetrated."

Mr. Ray spoke for two hours, while the crowd fought for vantage points to catch his words. He pictured Jones as a violent belligerent man, and declared that Shirley and Barrett were forced to shoot to defend themselves.

Jones, he said came to his death by his own acts and through defiance of the law. Many persons in the room were in tears when the attorney had concluded.

Mrs. Thomas C. Shirley, aged mother of the defendant, threw his arms about the lawyer and thanked him amidst tears and sobs for his effort in her son's behalf.

"BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD" with Louise Dresser is a Warner picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Beautiful Betty Terrell and handsome Hal Chalmers, mutually attracted, arrive in Hollywood as prize winners of newspaper contests, for movie tryouts. They take rooms on a boarding house frequented by movie actors. Marshall, reputed to be responsible for many of the "broken hearts of Hollywood," takes an interest in Betty. Reporting at the studio, they are depressed and amazed by the number of people seeking work. Movie producers see a mysterious resemblance in Betty to someone they cannot remember.

Cameron had no time to spend in attempts to place a casual resemblance that flickered across his memory. He turned and exhaled out the waiting, gaping crowd of extras, then called:

"You, Jennie—and you, Miss Baker—come here, please."

In response these stepped up to Cameron—a raw-boned youth of dogged mien, and a girl the dawning stoniness of whose pretty face and eyes was far, far too shamefully premature an accompaniment for the dawning youthfulness of her figure which was revealingly set off by a neat but shabby dress.

Cameron had these many years gone business on the theory that the bluntest and quickest method of blinding hopes, of conferring pain, is the kindest. Betty and encouragement, "don't feel that way about it. It wasn't you it would be somebody else. It's all in the game. I'll try and fix those two up with something else."

"Oh, will you really, please?" "I said I would!"

Cameron swiftly wrote a brief notation on each of two slips of paper, which he gave to an hovering office boy whom he gruffly called, instructing him, "Take these people to the Costume Department."

Betty and Hal, dazed and sick from their primary insight into the outthroat atmosphere of a casting office, followed the boy out into the Yard with an eagerness that was augmented by their desire to escape the hostile, covetous surveillance of the hubbly of broken people—most of them broken in hope, many in body, and all in heart.

Now they were crossing the Yard, in the very midst of "fairland"; but instead of gossamer beauty all that the inside view presented to their wide open stares was a complex mess of pots and wires and ladders and vehicles of all sorts, from Roman chariots to Pords, and painted sets that did not look half so attractive from the back as they did on the screen, and such a mob of idling, jabbering people that Betty and Hal, hand in hand, found it difficult to thread their way through after the elusive office boy. Mostly they were conscious of wires—wires—wires—and the intolerable heat of a California sun burning down into the great cement quadrangle, cooking every one and everything there en masse.

Betty and Hal felt thrilled by the excitement and bustle, stirred by the unfamiliar sounds and smells—yet lost. On the heels of the boy they presently entered a low building at the far side of the Yard, and found themselves confronting a wicker cage in which were two windows, not unlike banking windows: one labelled MEN, the other

"The other?" "Oh, one at each end of the floor, Betty." "Was it there with that?" "A lot of various colored cloth and odds and ends of costumes. Back of this open space long shelves extended into mysterious and gloomy recesses, while doors connected auxiliary store rooms, each of which, she could glimpse through the open doors, was crammed full of costumes of one sort or another, and packed in one way or another, some hanging up, some shelved.

The woman glanced expertly at Betty, and, without a word, turned and disappeared into one of the adjunctive rooms; the man went through a similar performance with Hal. Long experience had made it possible for these wardrobe heads to estimate at a single glance the size of garment any person would require.

"Wait here," instructed the office boy curtly, as he turned to go. "They'll fix you up with duds and tell you where to dress and where to report."

"What pictures are we to be in?" asked Betty breathlessly, with a resurrected interest as the excitement of actual realization at last banished from her mind for the time being thoughts of the tragic encounters at the "gate."

"Aw, kid, take too long to explain," lipped the boy. "I'm going now to hunt up the assistant directors of each company and tell them that Cameron says Butler's passed out the word to fit you in. They'll be over a h—, I'll tell the Turpin-eyed world, but you should worry. If the Old Man says you're in, then you're in—till you're out!" With that profundity lingering after him to further beloud Betty and Hal, the youngster departed.

But Betty and Hal had not long to worry and wonder, for the wardrobe man reappeared inside the cage and called Hal down to the end of the high wiring, where, upon a counter, he dumped before him a complete Western cowboy outfit, a le movie, including chaps, shirt, boots, kerchief, gun belt, revolver, and sombrero.

While Hal—with Betty, who had tiptoed down to his elbow to peek—stared at the outfit in perplexity, the man glanced at Hal's slip again, then informed him:

"You will dress in No. 9. Wait there until you're called!" passing the slip to Hal.

"Where is No. 9?" asked Hal.

The overworked wardrobe man snarled, "Gwan out in the Yard and ask somebody. I can't explain from here. It's too complicated."

Betty, meanwhile, had been summoned to a counter at the opposite end of the cage by the wardrobe woman; Hal went there to see how she was faring.

He found Betty staring in horror and shame at a very scanty one-piece bathing suit, which she had picked up from the counter where the wardrobe woman had thrown it.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

White House Prize Collies Refuse To Behave Even For National Anthem

By International News Service

WASHINGTON—Rob Roy and Prudence Prim, prize members of the White House menagerie are in perfect accord with Tad, the cartoonist, insofar as the Navy is concerned—the first hundred years are the hardest.

These two prize white collies don't mind week-end trips on the water. In fact, they enjoy them—that is, after the gangplank has been negotiated.

The Coolidge dogs have the distinction of being the only living creatures in the United States and probably in the world, who hold a particular aversion to stepping up the gangplank that leads to the deck of the Presidential yacht, Mayflower. Whereas all the rest of the population would trade a right eye for the privilege of exploring the Potomac River with the Executive couple, Rob and Prudence not only balk, but actually rebel against the experience.

Rob and Prudence always accompany the President and Mrs. Coolidge down the river over the weekends. After the Mayflower has weighed anchor they seem actually to enjoy things. But the twenty-foot passage from limousine to deck is an ordeal that the Coolidges have come to expect with unlimited patience and forbearance.

One of the last times the President sought respite from official Washington in this manner, the recalcitrant Rob Roy nearly pulled him into the Potomac. The boarding of the yacht had been successfully accomplished. The boatmen had piped the party over the side and the band was playing "The Star Spangled Banner." Mr. Coolidge stood at attention, saluting with his right hand and holding the leash to Rob Roy with his left. As the final crescendo of the National Anthem was reached, the dog galvanized into action and bolted for shore. From the staid and dignified salute, the President unceremoniously was yanked down the gangplank, regaining his balance only when almost on the verge of toppling into the river.

FILM CITY HAS $1,250,000,000 INVESTED IN PICTURE INDUSTRY

By THOMAS R. CURRAN,
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD.—Hollywood, the city where are shot the films seen around the world, is one of the leading industrial centers of the nation, figures made public today revealed.

The industry is the creation of Romance. The capital invested amounts to more than $1,250,000,000. This figure represents five-sixths of the total world investment in motion pictures, $1,500,000,000. Property investments in Hollywood, including land, studios, sets, stage properties, costumes and raw materials, total $375,000,000, according to surveys just completed.

The motion picture industry came to California about 16 years ago, a spindling child, with thousands invested in it where millions are invested now. From a toy amusement, scarcely taken seriously, it has become an American Colossus that girdles the world and pokes its way into dark corners where missionaries and traders have been the only previous contacts with white civilization.

More and more the industry is centering around Los Angeles. Today 85 per cent of all the pictures made in the United States are made here, 11 per cent in New York, and 14 per cent elsewhere.

Paramount, one of the largest producing organizations, has just completed the construction of a new studio at an outlay of $2,500,000, doubling its Hollywood capacity.

Competent to Judge

THERE is no better way for you to learn the true value of commodities in general use than to read the advertisements day by day—regardless of whether or not you have any immediate intention of buying.

Those young housekeepers whose first experiences in marketing began in war-time have a fixed idea of high prices. Those of an older generation have an equally strong conviction that prices should be lower.

With the shifting changes of a rapidly moving world both prices and values are bound to fluctuate. A financier studies these trends with scrupulous care in published financial reports compiled by experts.

An intelligent housewife may similarly make herself a competent judge of values by studying each day's advertisements of the things she needs—just as the broker studies his stock list.

Then as she comes to buy she may do so with full confidence in her knowledge.

Clay Glasco, of Hartselle, while attempting to help a stalled motorist on Bank street yesterday afternoon, slipped and fell, suffering a broken ankle.

The Louisville and Nashville railroad will spend $38,000 adding a new siding in their Oakworth yards and otherwise increasing the yard facilities.

Miss Ruby Jones will go to Birmingham Monday to attend the Norton-Kemp nuptials.

Miss Smith, of Tuscaloosa, is the guest of Mrs. Robert Banks.

An optimist is a fellow who really believes the candidate doesn't want the office, but desires to serve.

By the way, what has happened to the satsuma that was going to run oranges off the market?

An advertisement says "Man Postpones His Funeral." Hope he hasn't patented the idea.

The need of a big municipal auditorium in Birmingham was never more strikingly illustrated than during the Shirley trial.

The cotton season is here. The first bloom was reported by Frank Prentiss, a consistent early reporter of blooms and bales.

The visiting Junior Chamber of Commerce delegate, who wanted to know if Morgan county grows cotton must wonder, sometime, if coal is produced in Pennsylvania.

While his opponents grumble about the manner he is conducting his campaign, Andrew G. Patterson is taking his cause to the people and winning votes.

Owners of unroofed buildings here are wishing some way could be found to have our wind and rain storms separately.

The German people are a hardy lot. They have voted to pay the Kaiser for the royal estates. They appear to welcome trouble.

Perhaps The Daily spoke entirely too soon of the benefits of the rains to Morgan county crops. At this rate the farmers will soon be praying for sunshine.

The Countess of Cathcart is reported about to marry again. She must be planning to scatter "The Ashes of Love."

The exuberance of youth is apparent and admitted, but it is hard to get the viewpoint of the youngster who attempted the Charleston in a rowboat, upset the craft and drowned five occupants.

With so many candidates running for office the error of a South Alabama paper may be pardoned. All the make-up man on that paper did was to print Bankhead's picture in Kilby's advertisement. Another joint debate might be arranged to settle the matter.

McDowell supporters will strenuously deny that they have adopted as their campaign song that famous old melody: "We don't know where we're going, but we're on our way." Yet Mr. McDowell says "trust me." He admits plans for increasing the revenue of the state by taxation, but calmly announces he will not reveal his plans until after the election, for fear he might lose the vote of the man to be taxed.

BARBERS HELP BOBBED HAIR GIRL WHO SLAPPED FACE OF PREACHER

Kentucky is being treated to a novel fight. Barbers of Eastern Kentucky are said to be aiding Miss Martha Bates, the girl who slapped the face of a preacher, who was alleged to have made disparaging remarks about girls and women who have their hair bobbed.

A group of tonsorial artists, it is said, was instrumental in getting Governor Fields to grant a 90-day stay of sentence, after the girl had been sentenced to forty days in jail.

Now the barbers are reported to be raising funds with which to buy the young lady an automobile. They resent this indirect attack on the freedom of the scissors.

Over at Camp McClellan, the soldier's equipment does not seem complete, without a ramshackle automobile. The Camp McClellan Messenger has compiled a list of some of the pet names assigned these vehicles by students in the various camps. They include: "Four Wheels and No Brakes, 99 payments and she'll be ours, 'Bama bound, Ladies Rest Room, Why Girls Leave Home, the Nash Can, the Ingersol of Autos, Oil by Myself, Sick Cylinders, Puddle Jumper, The Stuttering Stutz, Four Wheels, All Tired, I may be shiftless, but I am not tired, Pierce Arrow with a quiver, 100 per cent A Meri Can, Just see what $12.60 will do, 99 per cent static, Rolls-oats, Danger 20,000 jolts, Vertical Four, Struggle Buggy, The Uncovered Wagon, Little Bo-Creep, Honest Weight—no springs, Dis Squeals, Mah-junk, Pray as you enter."

Who said the army limited initiative?

DEMOCRATIC PAPERS ARE FRANKLY DISCUSSING THE NEXT PRESIDENTIAL RACE

Democratic papers of Alabama, having had their political minds more or less turned to activities of the electorate are diverting a bit from discussion of state races, to give some consideration to the chances of the democratic party in the next national campaign.

Many of these expressions reveal a conviction on the part of Alabama editors that neither Mr. Smith nor Mr. McAdoo is available as a winning candidate for the party in 1928.

The Jasper Mountain Eagle, stating bluntly that the party can unite on neither, admits that McAdoo could poll more votes than Smith, but adds "but if these men are the only presidential timber the democratic party has to select as a nominee in 1928, the outlook for the party is far from rosy."

The Covington News believes "the democrats will have to bring forth a stronger contender than either before hoping for a victory in 1928."

The Daily concurs in their opinion. It is inconceivable that either Mr. McAdoo or Mr. Smith could display such master strategy and such extraordinary diplomacy as would cement the party again, after it had been split wide open by their differences in New York.

John W. Davis, a compromise candidate and an able leader, was unable to make more than a poor showing at the job and it is difficult to see how Mr. McAdoo or Mr. Smith could fare any better and easy to believe that they might fare a great deal worse.

CONGRESS EXTENDS TIME LIMIT FOR CONVERSION OF GOVERNMENT INSURANCE

The American Legion, in the face of the legislative jam in congress, has been able to force through both branches of that body a bill extending the time limit within which ex-service men may reinstate or convert their war risk insurance.

For some unaccountable reason thousands of ex-service men have permitted their government insurance to lapse and become ineffective, despite the fact that it is known as the cheapest insurance obtainable. The men who wore the uniform probably were imbued, after the conflict, with much the same aversion to all things governmental and militaristic as the general public.

Many of them probably dropped their government insurance policies because they wanted to "get as far away" as possible from their trying experiences of the war days. Others, very likely, failed to recognize the financial benefits of the government's policies. These, the ex-service men's organizations, will attempt to persuade, have made a costly mistake.

The American Legion Weekly recently said on this subject:

The need now is for a continuance of efforts to inform every service man who has not reinstated his insurance of the advantages of doing this before the new time limit, July 2, 1927. In this effort the Legion may count upon the continued co-operation of the private insurance companies which gave extraordinary help in the campaign to get as many men as possible to get right on their insurance before July 2, 1926. The private insurance companies have repeatedly testified to the advantages of the insurance offered by the Government and have freely given unselfish service to World War veterans seeking assistance in getting their term insurance reinstated and converted.

Certainly in this age few will deny that insurance is essential in the life plans of almost every individual, not only the man with present obligations to dependents but also the man who is looking forward to the time when he may have obligations which he does not have now. Insurance is an individual problem to each service man as well as to non-service men. Each man, acting on the best information and advice he may obtain, will want to decide the type of policy which will best fit his needs and the amount of insurance he can justifiably maintain. If it served no other purpose than that of bringing urgently to the attention of service men the abstract problem of insurance, the government insurance now offered would justify itself.

TWO LOCAL STREET PROJECTS ARE OF MUCH CONCERN TO THE CITIZENSHIP

The spirit of co-operation now being indicated by the officials of the city of Albany and the members of the state highway department in the matters of Echols hill and Second avenue repair is very commendable. From these new discussions certainly something worthwhile should come.

President John M. Maxwell was quoted in The Daily Tuesday to the effect that the city council is deeply concerned over the condition of Second avenue. He stated frankly, however, that officials felt that the city should not be called on to bear part of the expense of the repair of the street. He asserted, however, that the city was willing to extend its co-operation in any movement which would place the thoroughfare in the condition necessary for comfortable passage over it.

The property owners and those who do business on the avenue are interested, the public generally is interested. With the city also interested, it does not look like a difficult matter to get the property owners and the city together on some plan which would work out to their mutual benefit and relieve a condition which is causing embarrassment to the officials of one and costing business to the other.

The state highway commission indirectly, perhaps, has admitted its liability for the repair of Echols Hill. Intimation has been given that the thoroughfare will be put into good condition when the road machinery, now engaged in work on the Moulton highway, reaches a point sufficiently near to the city to make the transfer of equipment to Echols Hill feasible.

The Daily hopes that day is not far distant. Echols Hill is in deplorable condition. It is a bad advertisement for the Twin Cities and for the state. Visitors probably do not realize the problems which faced authorities of the city and the state in planning repair of Echols Hill. All the average traveler thinks about when traversing Echols Hill is the road, itself, and its effect on himself and his automobile. Naturally enough these thoughts are not pleasant.

The state highway commission also intimated that the course of the Bee Line highway, leading out of the city, might be changed slightly so as to eliminate Echols Hill. That, of course, is a matter for the state highway commission, in due time to decide. The Daily judges, however, that the decision will not be made at once and, in the meantime, the people are suffering because Echols Hill has not been repaired. The Daily believes the state highway commission will see the justice in the claim that Echols Hill should be repaired now and future eventualities permitted to be taken care of when they arise.

nual convention in New York. Nothing more important than new thought, all progress comes of it. Nothing more common than the hallucination that we are thinking a new way. Nothing more than a thought really new.

OUR thought grows out of old thought as forests grow out of dead trees. An old thought surprises us, we think it new. The patent office is bothered by geniuses seeking to patent old ideas.

A real new thought is known by the unanimity with which it is rejected. When 10,000 can discuss new thought and not tear each other's hair, you may be sure the thought is old.

H. G. WELLS discusses marriage and asks "are you for or against abolishing it?" Wells thinks that marriage survives, largely because of what he calls the impudent intolerance of our intellectually and morally discredited religious organizations.

MARRIAGE and religion are both "fading out," according to Wells and others, sincere but not acquainted with the mind of man.

Marriage and religion are only starting. It took more than 100,000 years to cure men of cannibalism. It will take as long to cure them of promiscuity in family life and of superstition bigotry, cruelty and intolerance in religion. But there is plenty of time.

THIS world will last more than one hundred millions years longer according to science. When Wells re-appears, with a different shape and brain, say 100,000 years hence.

A suggestion that marriage be abolished will sound as preposterous as a suggestion to retore cannibalism, torture of witnesses or burning alive for differences in religion.

The one tenth of one per cent that is good in man is religious and monogamous, and that tenth of one per cent will grow to 100 per cent with time.

MARY ROBERTS RHINEHART in an article published Tuesday, said a wise thing, to which rushing nervous Americans should pay attention: "Preparing always to live, we wear ourselves out, and die before the time comes."

English, Frenchmen, German-plan their lives, work to get what the plan requires, then retire, and live for a while. In America we plan industriously every man will tell you what he will do and how he will live, by and by. Later you hear that he is dead—the plan never carried out.

But it is a good thing for the country, and for its men. They were made to work, not to plan a pleasant existence, and the country needs their work, not their leisure. Plenty of time to retire, in Heaven, where no work is done.

IN a sham battle, above New York, our farcial air fleet did wonders, and the defenders won. They usually do win, in sham battle.

Some say: "We are rich and can build as many airships as may be needed when the time comes. Why waste money on models that must soon be obsolete?"

Solon, wisest of the seven, answered that question when Croesus proudly showed him his piles of gold: "Oh, king, if any other come that hath better from than you, he will be master of all this gold."

If any nation comes flying East or west with better flying machines than ours, that nation will be master of all our gold.

IT HAS been announced that the president and Mr. Mellon planned no further reduction in federal taxes for at least a year or two. But this country is rich, receipts seem to increase as the taxes are lowered, and the June payments of income and other taxes are far beyond estimates. Uncle Sam will probably find himself with $500,000,000 more than he needs this year and able to cut taxes again.

How those figures will sound in Europe and how earnestly Europeans will feel that we ought to enter the league of nations or at least the world court and give Europe a chance to dispose of that surplus.

Dear Sir:

My attention has been called to the editorial in your issue of June 12, pointing out the interest in the joint debate between Mr. Kilby and me, and showing that much good has been done toward informing the public on issues involved.

I want to thank you upon your expressions on that subject.

Yours very truly,

SLEEP IS AFFECTED BY BLOOD CIRCULATION

A Cool Temperature, Like Coffee, Is Stimulating But a Heavy Dinner or a Warm Room Will Bring on Drowsiness.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Why do people get sleepy when they ought to stay awake?

It is a good thing to be sleepy at the right time, but it is embarrassing to be sleepy at a time of day when you should be wide-awake. It looks ridiculous if you nod in your chair and nearly break your neck when you actually drop into slumber. I saw a Senator sound asleep at his desk in Washington the other day. He appeared very sheepish when he woke up and realized what had happened.

Scientists argue a lot over what causes sleep. They are not sure whether it is due to lessened blood in the brain, or to the effect of some agent generated in the body and capable of a narcotic effect on the brain and nervous system.

There can be no doubt that the circulation of the blood is related to the production of sleep. Strong coffee or other stimulant in the right amount will send the heart to pumping, causing the blood to go bounding on its way to the brain. Then the desire for sleep disappears.

You have a big dinner in delightful company and then go home to read or write. To your despair you find the words running together and the stuff you are trying to write is a stupid mess. The blood is busy digesting the food and your brain is in a muddle. There is nothing left but to go to bed and submit to your sleepy impulses.

Focus on you are sleepy doesn't always mean that you are tired. You may not and doze just because your system is clogged with an enormous meal. If you would only wake up you could do a day's work and be ready to start tomorrow.

When you have mental work to do or want your mind to be alert and ready, starve yourself a bit. Take only big meals when you have time to digest them without interfering with your mental machinery.

To stay in a temperature at body heat is enervating and sleep producing. We need the gusts of cool air which strike the body like a gently applied whiplash. This keeps us fresh and wide awake.

Uniformity of temperature is deadly to mental activity. Opening the window means more than getting fresh air. It means that your body is stimulated by the change in temperature. You are refreshed by the effect upon your circulation.

By moving about you stir into being some gentle air currents which excite your blood flow, and pretty soon you are wide-awake and ready for useful service. Don't permit yourself to grow stupid and fat by giving in to your sleepy moods. Grow strong and healthy and vigorous by avoiding the manner of life which makes you nod at your work.

Answers to Health Queries

Interested. Q.—Kindly tell me how to remove liver spots from my face and neck.

A.—This condition is due to poor intestinal elimination. For further particulars send self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mrs. E. T. Q.—What do you advise for lungbo?

A.—Application of heat and massage will give relief. There is probably some infection in your system. Try to locate it and clear up the trouble. For further particulars send self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

M. L. Q.—I have a swelling at the right side of the throat, have been very ill and also suffered a great shock. The swelling seems larger at times than at others. What would you advise. I wish to avoid an operation.

A.—Your trouble may be due to goiter or simply enlarged glands, due to infection. Have your doctor advise you definitely after examination and then proper treatment can be advised. An operation is not always necessary. Medication is effective in many instances.

G. C. Q.—What can be done for continuous dreaming?

A.—This is sometimes due to intestinal derangements. Avoid constipation. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

N. Y. Z. Q.—What is good for blackheads?

2.—What will remove corns on the hands?

3.—What is a good blood tonic?

A.—Careful diet and regular elimination should bring about results. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

3.—Callouses may be removed by soaking the hands and then applying warm linseed oil to soften the parts. Rubbing gently with pumice stone should also be helpful.

3.—Blade's iron pills one after each meal will act as a tonic and builder for the blood.

ANXIOUS. Q.—What do pains around the heart, palpitation and a burning sensation indicate?

A.—Indigestion would be apt to cause these symptoms. Watch your diet and avoid constipation. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Leaky White House Roof Brings Clash Between Coolidge and Army

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—

President Coolidge apparently does not take much stock in the technical and administrative abilities of army officers, and, inversely, those same officers are becoming rather irked at the attitude of their commander-in-chief.

On two occasions recently the official spokesman took occasion to refer slightly to the activities of military men in civilian capacity. The first time was in connection with the efforts of General Wood, Governor of the Philippines, to get sufficient money to engage civilian assistants, and the spokesman agreed it was a wise policy, adding that civilians were better equipped to handle administration work.

The Final Blow

The final blow came, however, in a discussion of the condition of the White House roof, which has been condemned. Mr. Coolidge, the spokesman said, was convinced that a new roof was necessary and that to continue longer with the present one would be dangerous.

This opinion was reached, however, he continued, only after the President had had a member of congress formerly a contractor, make a survey of the roof to supplement the report of the Army engineers. The latter, it was added, would characteristically "tear down the White House to fix the chimney."

That remark was too much for the doughboys to endure. Of course, they couldn't come out openly and take issue, but privately their conversation is anything but pleasant. The subject is a matter of constant discussion in Army circles.

Criticize Statements

"Statements such as that are a fine incentive to the Engineers in their efforts to make the White House a safe place to live in," remarked one high officer.

"A few more cracks like that and Coolidge will ruin the morals of the whole army," added another.

Still another officer refuted the White House spokesman's statement that Army Engineers were the first to survey the now-famous roof. Civilian architects of the office of public buildings and grounds were responsible for the report later made to the president by the engineers, he said.

forts to make the White House a safe place to live in," remarked one high officer.

America Wears Out 1,200 Tons Of Paper Currency Every Year

By ROBERT S. THORNBURG,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—

Twelve hundred tons of paper currency are manufactured annually by the United States Government to supply the money needs of the country.

Americans "wear out" their paper money faster than their shoes, according to experts, who said that during the past twelve months more than 1,000,000,000 new bills were put into circulation.

"The United States Bureau of Standards, in co-operation with the Treasury and Bureau of Efficiency have started a study to find means of extending the life of paper money," said a statement issued at the Department of Commerce.

"The life of a $1 bill, which is the greater part of our paper currency, had been continually decreasing in the past years until in 1924 it averaged six months. Formerly its life was around twenty months."

The use of paper currency has increased three-fold in the last fifteen years. The country wore out a billion paper bills last year weighing 1,200 tons.

Officials said that the chief contributing factors to the decreasing life of paper currency are due to its rapidity of circulation and the increasing carelessness in handling it.

"These conditions may possibly be partly accounted for by the decreasing purchasing value of the bills," Bureau of Standards officials said.

"The cost of the annual replacement has amounted to $4,000,000. The Treasury Department is concerned not only with this huge outlay but is faced with the necessity of making costly additions to its paper currency printing plants as its production facilities are becoming overtaxed."

Officials suggested the necessity of an extensive technological research on both the paper manufacturing processes. The paper manufacturing processes are being studied on a semi-commercial scale at the paper mill in the Bureau of Standards. Various proportions of linen and cotton fibers are being experimented with in the making of paper that goes into the currency.

The new processes of paper production and printing will provide against counterfeiting, according to officials.

Another line of research being followed deals with the surface sizing of the printed bills. Such treatment is said to increase life of the bills through protection from surface abrasions, giving them better water resistance to wear is obtained by more permanent.

It has been found that increased resistance to wear is obtained by hardening the glazing with formaldehyde.

Tests made show the new processes will increase the average life of bills to ten months. A 100 per cent increase in strength has been obtained.

Officials expressed the belief that in spite of harder use and more frequent handling, paper currency soon will be

FARM DEMONSTRATION NOTES

MORGAN COUNTY FARM BUREAU SENDS OUT FERTILIZER REBATE

Last week the Morgan county farm bureau sent out its annual rebate or patronage dividend on fertilizer purchased by its membership.

The state farm bureau federation buys for the entire membership of the state, and the material is distributed through the county organization. The state committee, by doing a cash business of around three million dollars, can get the best prices obtainable. Distribution is made to the membership at prices sufficient to cover all charges, and after all bills have been paid, a rebate is made to each member according to his purchases.

This year, the state office rebated to the counties $1.57 per ton. The Morgan County directors voted to retain seven cents a ton for some office equipment and sent the members $1.50 a ton.

The net prices our members have paid, after receiving the rebate are as follows: acid phosphate $18 in 100 pound bags, and $17.25 in 200 pound bags; nitrate of soda $57.90 for the earliest delivery and $59.70 for the latest delivery; muriate of potash $39.50 for the earliest delivery and $40.10 for the latest delivery; kainit $14.60 for the earliest delivery and $15.10 for the latest delivery.

Most of the members mixed the fertilizer according to the Auburn formula which analyzes about 10-5 1-2-1 and the average cost was $32.50 per ton after the rebate was paid.

STILL TIME TO PLANT BEANS FOR HAY

By J. C. Ford, County Agent

The good rains of the last few days make it possible to plant hay beans to good advantage. Ootootans or Lorego planted in drills at the rate of one bushel to six acres or broadcast at the rate of one bushel to three acres should make a heavy yield of the best grade of hay.

These beans can be bought in Hartselle at very attractive prices.

Miss Pearl Jones, conservation specialist, from Auburn will be in Hartselle on next Thursday and Friday, July 1st and 2nd. During this time she will hold a canning school for the canning leaders of the girls' and women's clubs over the county. The meetings will be held in the city hall adjoining the County Agents' office. The demonstration will include canning of fruits, vegetables and meats in glass and tin.

All clubs, both girls' and women's are expected to have their representatives here for these meetings. The meeting will begin promptly at 9:00 o'clock in the morning and end at 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon. The representatives will all please bring note books and pencils. Those who wish to go home at night and return for the meetings on Friday may do so. However, it is suggested that all who can remain in town over Thursday night so they will have no difficulty in being on time for the Friday morning session. While this is principally for the canning leaders of the clubs, others are invited to attend. During July all the club meetings for women and girls will be canning demonstrations. All club members are expected to put up about one dozen standard containers for community and county exhibits. All jars and cans used during the school will be standard containers. These jars are on sale at some of the stores in Hartselle. It is expected some of the Albany-Decatur store will handle the jars for the people in that section.

Let every club be sure that it has its representatives here for the two days.

Weak? Always Tired? Take Iron with Cod Liver Oil

Easy to Take in New Tablet Form How to Order from Your Druggist

Get strength and nerve force quickly! Stop getting up tired in the morning. Add 5 to 15 pounds a month. Take iron for rich, red blood. Take cod liver oil for good healthy flesh. Physicians say these are sure body builders.

Chemists now extract the vitamins and energy-producing, weight-building elements from cod liver oil, and throw the useless nauseating oil away. These extracts are mixed with iron and other health-building ingredients in easy-to-take tablet form. Specify Burke's Cod Liver Oil and Iron Tablets at the drug store. They'll start to build your weight and give you strength and energy almost at once.

Dempsey and Tunney May Meet Later In This Year, West of New York State

William Harrison Dempsey, fire-side champion of the heavyweights, is going to be drawn into turmoil. That gentleman will "probably" meet Gene Tunney somewhere west of New York state in September, at any place Tex Rickard may select. Dempsey is sorry that the fight will not be held in New York state.

The New York boxing commission is not going to countenance the match in the vicinity of state limits, they having settled upon Harry Wills, dusky challenger, as the power behind Dempsey's throne. They have not recognized Tunney as a pounder of ability and have refused to recognize the ex-Marine as a title chance.

Both fighters appear unconcerned as to the location of the bout but both men are confident of their ability as holders of the world's heavy title.

Dempsey passes his 30th milestone today and leaves next week for Colorado to his Saratoga Springs training camp where he will polish off for his September fight, if he fights.

Dempsey is probably in better trim than Tunney, having retired from the potential wealth of the movie. Tunney has been engaged in picture making and writers are of the opinion that Dempsey is in the better condition of the two men.

The Cards moved a little closer to the select circle yesterday defeating the Pirates while the Reds were losing to Chicago 5-3. Four clubs are providing thrills in the National league race, Brooklyn having grabbed a double header from the Red Sox yesterday and shoving themselves back into the pennant chase. Pittsburgh, and the Reds remain at a difference of one point. The Cards are a full game back of the league leaders while Brooklyn is two and a half games down the ladder, but firmly entrenched in fourth place.

Tolson was the sensation of the Cub victory yesterday, hitting a home run in the pinch when he hit for Heathcote. One man was on base when the former Nashvillian hit his hectic clout.

Only one game was played in the American League and result disastrously for the Cleveland Indians. Chicago defeated the Tribe 5-3 and moved back into second place.

Down in the Southern league the Barons and Crackers were idle with a steady downpour of rain. The Barons losing a chance to cut down some of the advantage of the Pels who were busy dropping a verdict to Little Rock. The Pels lost 9-2, Ray Caldwell pitching a steady game against the league leaders. Nashville outpointed the Noogans 9-7, grabbing an early lead and swinging on to the same margin all the way through. Memphis pointed a patch to victory over the Mobile Bears 11-4, the Bears us-

Rogers Hornsby showed some of his old time talent yesterday when he hit a home run in the pinch. With the score tied the Jolly Roger hit to the right field wall, the bases were loaded when the blow came.

Belief that the habit of playing each Thursday afternoon in the Twin Cities, business men tilts, may lead to the organization of a fast amateur circuit a little later in the summer is the hope of the greater number of fans in this section. Good crowds have turned out to witness the past two games between the business leagues and is taken as an indication that the people here are interested in baseball. Just what effect charging for admission to the gate will have is still regarded as a mystery to the team manager.

Supreme Court May Probe Injunction

(Associated Press)
EMPORIA, Kansas, June 24.—The United States supreme court probably will be asked to pass on the validity of a state wide injunction prohibiting Ku Klux Klan demonstration following a parade here last night of 10,000 men and 300 women wearing the regalia of the Klan.

An application of the state of Kansas for an injunction to prevent the parade was refused here yesterday by Judge Richardson in district court.

A white way is being boosted for Ensley, civic organizations joining together in efforts to bring about the success of the plan.

Cubs On The Toboggan See Hope Gone For Finishing Near Top

CHICAGO—The wrath of a disgruntled Fate has settled down on Cubland!

And in its sinister way, it has displaced the managerial duties of Joe McCarthy, until they have degenerated into that turbulent state which seems hereditarily with the North Side piloting job. Johnny Evers was the first victim. Bill Killifer experienced it. Then Rabbit Maranville was stricken. Now McCarthy shows symptoms of having been afflicted.

Numerous and diverse reasons for the present situation might be advanced by the careful observer, but the ultimate consummation, in practically every case, brings forth the old and discomfiting conclusion—the Cubs are not the ball team to figure, straight, place or show, in the National League race.

All went well with McCarthy and his team until the opening series of their first swing around the circuit early in June. At Pittsburgh the Pirates began a pummeling process which has not been discontinued by other Eastern teams. This far followed by the release of Cooper, a veteran left-hander in the National League, who may or may not have been a great trouble-maker, as is charged.

The release of Cooper engendered no little criticism on the part of Cub fans, generally, but the incident was soon forgotten. Then came the suspension of "Old Pete" Alexander, but fluently discussed here as permanent.

Alexander enjoyed but indifferent success this year and McCarthy, so he says, had diagnosed his case thoroughly. It was a lack of training and respect for his club, abetted by an old affliction. Alex' case is pathetic, yet so real it is not unusual.

Other conditions have arisen to add to the turbulence of the Cub situation which at the start was none too good with a poor pitching staff, an unimpressive shortfield department, and a tinge of dissension, which threatens momentarily to break out in veritable revolt.

A number of well-thought-of young men, some strangers and a few fairly well-known on the North Side, failed to show according to their reported capabilities. One of these was it later turned out, could not travel far enough in a major league infield. Shannon, the Louisville flash, who, to stay up in the big time, he could hit, however, but generally considered he was a bubble.

There is among the Cubs, it is reported, considerable creed animosity, religious and fraternal. Rumor has affiliated the Bruins with such a handicap for a number of years.

Pate cast its buoyant fortune on the Cubs early in the season and inflated the hopes of Chicago and W. W. Wrigley, Jr., owner of the team, who brought McCarthy "up." Wrigley placed $1,000,000 at McCarthy's disposal to buy ball players and subsequently a pennant. McCarthy has made a "good ol' college try" to spend the million.

The outlook for the Cubs now is sombre, disheartening and extremely disappointing, although they are still a couple of stations from the cellar. Their case is not hopeless, for there are two sides to everything, even to a ball game.

West Coast Bootleggers Hide Booze In Fish Nets Hung Over Boat's Side

By International News Service
LOS ANGELES—

Airplanes and fish nets are the latest weapons to be employed by Los Angeles harbor bootleggers and off-shore rum-runners.

When a bootlegger's consignment recently was fifteen days overdue, the enterprising retailer of rare liquor chartered a plane and went out to sea hunting his craft.

Many of the rum ships are now equipped with large fishing nets, officials of the Coast Guard discovered and when the Federal cutters come into sight the liquor supplies are lowered in the nets below the ship's waterline.

The High Cost Of Excess Weight

Excess weight in motor trucks is expensive. It increases the purchase price and it costs as much to carry as an equal weight of payload. Its cost is even greater, because it must be carried all the time.

Graham Brothers trucks have a larger proportion of payload to chassis weight than is usually available in their respective capacities. Careful buyers are giving this due recognition, as their marked preference for Graham Brothers trucks indicates.

Built by the largest exclusive truck makers in the world—powered by Dodge Brothers dependable engine—these trucks are capable of an exceptional amount of profitable work over a long period of life.
